How much does care at home cost and what are my funding options?

Cost is understandably a major consideration when looking into care and support.

A good starting point is to contact your local authority's Adult Social Care Team to ask for an assessment and to talk to them about both funding and care providers in the area. They can help establish whether you would qualify for local authority support and whether they would provide any funding for your care and support.

Financially, there is a threshold above which the local authority would not provide funding. This is based on the savings and assets of the person receiving care.

The threshold in England and Northern Ireland is currently £23,250 (thresholds differ in Wales, Northern Ireland & Scotland). If you have savings and assets above this level, you will be responsible for funding your own care and support.

Controlling the costs

It's also very important that you clearly understand what your support will cost so that there are no surprises. You will receive a tailored quote that details all the visits and shows a clear weekly cost. This allows you to make an informed decision.

If you are looking at funding yourself, then it is important to remember that you are in control of the support you select. A good care provider should always be able to work with you to create a support plan that considers both your needs and your financial position.

We are more than happy to work alongside family or friends who provide care so that you can benefit from additional support while keeping costs under control.

Our Pricing

How do care options costs compare?

While choosing care isn't, and shouldn't be, all about finding the cheapest option, there is often a cost benefit to choosing care and support at home compared to moving into a care home full time.

With care at home, you just pay for the care you receive. Here are some examples of our most common packages to give you an idea of the cost range. If you require more complex care, the cost can be higher, but we'll work with you to tailor your support plan to your specific needs and budget.

Care at home can be 40% or more cost effective than moving into a residential care home.

How is the price calculated?

We pride ourselves on being an ethical care provider and focus both on ensuring our staff are fairly paid for the work they do while at the same time keeping our prices as low as we can.

Our prices include mileage and are exactly the same no matter where you live.
